When I came to this program I thought all we could do was write letters to one another in this group. I had no idea it would be this fun. We can talk to our highschool mentors and our adult mebtors. We also get to do projects hving somethign to do with our adult mentors job! I heard we are gonng to be able to have a party to meet our adult mentors.

B.A. is fine: Thursday, May. 27, 1999

The frist time that was here,i was nervous because i thought there was only going to be 8th grades but there was sevenths grade.So it was okay.

What's going on? How do you guys like doing the "Eyes to the Future" online? I hope you all feel comfortable asking me questions about, ah anything, college, graduate school, working in a hospital, life stuff... Anyway, B.A., you asked why Jewel...I do like Jewel, I wish I could sing like her, I Love Jewelery too, but I chose "Jewel" because it is the name of one of the cardiac defibrillators (=the paddles that are put on the chest to "shock" people if they have a heart attack) that we implant in patients very often. "Jewel" is just the name of one particular defibrillator that we use. I have to run to clinic to see a patient. I hope you all will get a chance to e-mail me!!! -Jewel Getting around in highschool, I thought, was going to be tough. When I came to this program I met Raivine (screen name) She goes to Somerville High. She told me that she thought the same thing, but it doesn't take to long to figure out the highschool.

Math and science are the two hardest classes in the highschool. Their are different levels of math. IN the freshman year you can take algebra 1 or 2. Algerbra 2 is the harder one because it is the advanced section of algebra. When you get into an higher grade you take geometry and when you become a senior you can take calculus if you want. Calculus is really tough!

I like the questions you have put on the survey. In the medical field, when you're interviewing a patient, you want to let the patient tell you in her own words how they are feeling. If they come in complaining of a headache, it is best to ask open ended type questions. Using question #1 on your survey, What time of day do you get headaches? If the choices given are a.morning, b.night...etc. you sort of prevent the patient from telling exactly when the headaches occur which may be really important in determining the true cause. What if the patient usually gets headaches in the morning, but only after she takes her daily medicine. Is the medicine causing her headache? If you only give her the choice of morning, night, ...etc. you may miss some important info. If you simply asked her "When do you get headaches?" (open-ended rather than a closed ended question, which has multiple choices to pick from) you may be able to determine more quickly what the cause is. Yadda, Yadda, sorry I don't mean to go on and on! I hope this makes some sense. Some other questions you could ask...What seems to bring on your headache? What makes your headache go away? Is there anything that makes your headache feel better? (ie. tylenol, darkness...) Do headaches run in your family? Do you become physically ill during your headache? Are there any signs or symptoms that you experience before the headache starts? Also, I think a great thing to do before finishing your survey questions would be to find out all you can about different types of headaches. This will help you write good questions. Let me know if these suggestions are helpful, ok. Talk soon. -Jewel it is interesting because she gives us good ideas on what to change or add! This a very helpful message!

Now in terc we had people fill out the surveys and Now we are goinh to look and compere them.

Subject: team: Survey answers

Great job collecting all of your information. How do you think you could use this info to help people who get headaches?? One idea would be to take the answers you got from the survey and present them in a way that a reader could easily understand the cause and effect of the survey results. For instance, if you surveyed 10 people and 7 of them responded "stressed" to question #3, you could conclude that the cause of headaches in 70% of those surveyed was due to stress. You could then address the problem with ways of reducing stress to help prevent headaches, or something like that. Anyway, I just hope that your enjoying your project and it is not causing YOU any headaches!! You're pictures in Doing Science are cool, You guys have great computers, trade you?! Well, enjoy your day today and I hope to hear from you...Jewel.

Your science project idea is great... You don't have to use expensive equipment to do a really good "experiment". Taking a survey to find out why/when teens get headaches will provide all of you with some very good information that you can use in your own lives. You may want to start your project first by "brainstorming" and using your own experiences to figure out what type of questions to put into your survey (when and why do you all get headaches?). For example, do you get headaches when your studying for a test? If many teens respond "yes" to this question, you could take your experiment further and try to solve this problem. Your team could try relaxation techniques like meditation or physical activity like stretching exercises prior to an exam. If some of you stop getting headaches before exams, then maybe, just maybe you have figured out some way of preventing headaches in teens who experience them in this situation. OK, so maybe I am taking this a bit far, but it would be cool if it worked! Anyway, I think that conducting a survey can provide a lot of information that can be used to benefit many people in different ways. Most importantly, you all should have fun doing the project together. Let me know how your project is progressing and I would love to help out in any way...Smile, its spring!

Hi Bball99, Very cool name! Are you interested in the medical field? I am actually not a physician, but a Physician Assistant(PA). Basically, I work with a supervising physician who oversees my work and I am able to do many things that a physician would do in taking care of patients. The number of years spent in school to become a PA is less than the time spent in school to become a physician. Right now I am working at Boston Medical Center (University Hospital) and work with patients who have heart problems. I work in the electrophysiology department. We see patients who have abnormal heart rates and rhythms. (ie. a normal heart rate is between 60-100 beats per minute, our patients may have heart rates as low as 20 bpm and as high as 300 bpm.) These abnormal rates can make patients very sick. So, we treat them with medicines, pacemakers, or implantable defibrillators. These things help them maintain a normal heart rate which allows them to do their daily activities without feeling bad. and, Oh yeah, I LOVE MY JOB!!! Talk soon, Jewel

First of all to be honest i thought that this program was very dumb, but then one day i decided to give it a try when my science teacher Mrs. Richmond and Mrs. Crowe ask me if i would like to give it a try. I said yes but still I thought it was pretty dumb. So anyway when I came I get to send message and write message. I thought that was pretty cool and as i come more and more to the program i am enjoying every single thing i do this program is really a coll program for girls as a matter of fact I think that every girl should try this program you might learn more about science, math and technology. So i think this is pretty cool for girls and i think that they going to like it.

The dork who hit me in his black pontiac was on the WRONG SIDE of the road doing way above speed limit. He didn't even try to break when he hit us (at around 45-50 mph).. my mom's car is gone.. it's getting junked..

Happier news.. Senior PROM was last FRIDAY!! I had an awesome time.. but the music stunk..

How's your projects going? I judged at the WSNS science fair.. i didn't see any of you.. did you guys see me? There were some pretty cool projects... I gave some good scores, unfortunately, i had to give a really low score of 20 something.. but oh well...

Nice website, BioLabIV! I loved the baby pics! By the way, it seems that some of the links are broken. I was not able to view 4 out of 5 of your school pictures.

I also have a little tip for you. If you are going to include a lot of pictures on your website, it might be easier for people with slow internet access if you put your pictures on different pages and then linked to them all from an intro page. That way, no one has to wait too long to download your home page. Just an idea!

Greetings to whoever logs on and reads my message,

Let me be the first person to introduce myself. I am a senior at Somerville High School. I plan on majoring in Biology in college w/ a concentration in molecular biology. My screen name, BioLabIV, is my career goal. In a BioLabIV, you get to work w/ cool stuff like Ebola Zaire and Marburg - the diseases which can kill you in days... hehehe.. pretty cool, eh?

I love science. It is all that I ever want to do from now on. Any questions? ask me... if you want to.

Hey, today I gave a practice talk to my lab members from Whitehead Institute.. they mauled my slides and I have to change all of them.. hahaha... oh well, better them than my judges.. You see, I have to give this talk at Harvard Med School this saturday and my lab members are the guinie (i must've spelled that wrong) pigs... ok.. talk to u later.. gotta go "touch up" my presentation.. bye!! hope to hear from you soon

This the first message i ever got from BoilabV.

I think that math and science in high school is going to be very difficult for me because i really hate math and i'am not that good in science. So to me math in science in high school will be pretty boring especially math.

hey, that's pretty good progress

one idea that you might want to consider is to download songs from certain websites such as www.audiofind.com and then upload them into your website so that other people can download the songs from YOUR website... it's like a song warehouse..

they have songs on the computer in files called MP3. in most cases a lot of the songs are illegally burned (copied) but the ones at www.audiofind.com are legal maybe that's an idea u can look into. you can listen to nsync, or mariah carey from the computer!! they have files called hero.mp3 or hardest_thing.mp3 after you have these files downloaded into your computer you can play them on winamp

BioLabIV

I like this message because it makes me think of our project and the progress we're making.

Keep up the good work!

You might want to think about adding links to other musical sites. For example, a link on the Mariah Carey site to some other sites that people have made of her.

Or, you could add a way for people to send you feedback.

one idea that you might want to consider is to download songs from certain websites such as www.audiofind.com and then upload them into your website so that other people can download the songs from YOUR website... it's like a song warehouse..

they have songs on the computer in files called MP3. in most cases a lot of the songs are illegally burned (copied) but the ones at www.audiofind.com are legal maybe that's an idea u can look into. you can listen to nsync, or mariah carey from the computer!! they have files called hero.mp3 or hardest_thing.mp3 after you have these files downloaded into your computer you can play them on winamp

Hello, Missy, and everyone else. I am sorry it took me so long to respond. I've been teaching a course and have been out of my office for most of this week.

My job title is Artificial Intelligence Engineer, but I consider myself a computer scientist. I do research on lots of really cool things. I don't do one particular thing, but many different types of things. I do some programming and designing of systems, I develop spoken language dialogue systems, I do research on evaluation techniques, I do a lot of computational linguistics (understanding human speech and giving computers the ability to talk to and understand humans), and I also teach what I know to others.

That may have been to broad and confusing a description. I feel very lucky to have my job because I am constantly learning new things. It's more than just programming -- it's basically making computers interact with human more easily.

I have to run to a meeting now but I will write more later.

I have been checking out the progress on your project. I can see it in the "Doing Science" section. It looks pretty good so far! I have also seen a couple of pictures of you working on the project. You seem to be having such a good time! I really enjoy working in small groups on some of my projects. It's a great way to bounce ideas off other people and get other opinions. I do some of my work by myself and then meet with a larger group for other parts. It's amazing how many more ideas a group can come up with as opposed to just one person alone!

I like this message because it's from our adult mentor and she is advising us on our project!

hey.. glad to hear that you are interested in sciences. WOW..Nuclear physics and Biochemistry. That's tough stuff..but it's also lots of fun. I am considering going into the field of Bioengineering next year in college. I may want to specialize in the field of bioengineering of the brain. We have some fantastic physics in the high school. Well...if you get Mr. [X] next year...here's a tip...when he gives you a test on a computer, you can always go back to the beginning and change the answers. :)... hey.... well, starting off, i will be attending Syracuse University in New York next year if my parents let me. I read that you are upset because you will not be in honors science next year in 9th grade. Well, if you talk to your guidance counselor and have consent of your parents, you can request a honors class. And the chemistry thing,not everyone in 10th grade have to take chemistry but it is most likely the next level class to take. After that, your junior and senior year, you can pick Advanced Placement Bio, Chem or Physics. And sadly, no. I don't have a boyfriend. u?..... talk to you later.tomato623

My role models in Science would be my science teacher in 5th-6th grade Ms.Goulloud, She was the 1 to get me interested in science. AND i would also have to say Ms.Crowe(my teacher in 7th-8th grade) is also my role moldel in the feild of science. SHe was the one that really made my see how fun and interesting science really is. So i thank Ms.Goulloud and Ms. Crowe for always been there 4 me and been that creting person.

I really don't like math very much so i don't have a role model.

i am 16 and chinese. My birthday is june 23 1982. So i'm the youngest person in senior class. i have no pets. i play tennis on the school team. Pretty short, around 5'2. And weight arond 135. Pretty steep for someone my height. YIKES! My favorite things to do is to have a quite day down at the Cape, walks down bolyston street around 9pm, anything artsy or wild with my best buddy [c]. i have a special spot in a coffe shop where i like to sit and just drink hot chocolate. I love movies and SHOES!. SHOES ARE ESSENTIAL!...BUY GOOD SHOES! i love to read. Most people think victorian writers are boring but i find them less boring. I love the Brontes. This is really scary, i have three seasons of buffy taped. i don't know what i am going to do with them, but i have them taped. my favorite movie is FERRIS BULLER'S DAY OUT....IF YOU HAVEN'T SEEN THIS MOVIE. RENT IT! i am a very random person, you probably noticed from what you've read so far. I say what ever comes to mind in no particular order and some things have absolutely no connection with anything. i love mushrooms. i listen to alternative. peral jam, rem, garbage, alanis, blur, that kind of stuff. i can't draw worth a damn but i can carry a tune. I am a biologist doing research in conservation genetics and ecology. I use genetics to answer some cool questions about ecology. I manage a DNA Sequencing Lab where I get to do my own research and help others with there experiments.

Since I was in second grade, I have wanted to be a biologist. I wanted to study marine mammals and that is what I did before I came here.

Well these are my final thoughts about "Eyes to the Future" Well i enjoyed myself. i really liked it these year than last year. This year we were allowed to do science experiments we had more involvement with the high school girls and are mentors. My picture was put up i really like that. Well i really enjoyed myself and i recommend this after school program to any student in 7th-8th grade. Because you get to meet many different people and u get to know them better. That at the end u get to see them and talk to them in person u are amazed and say "wow! i talked to u like for 3-4 months and i pictured u different." Well bye 4 know. i hope i can do this again and i will be able to be 1 of the high school girls. I would like to thank my high school girl(tomato623), my mentor(ACGT), and ms.crowe(my science teacher), Clair, and Ms. Richmond. For all the help and THANK U!!!!!!!

sincerely, CALI6 =) bye

PS. to ACGT, thank u. U have really helped me. Now i want to really study hard and go to collage and get a degree in the field of science. I always have but u really help me clear the way and in seeing how the field of science is fun and not all work. THANK U!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

I'm glad that now i know about tha women in science and that they DO exist even tho they dont get rcognized az much az tha men do... but wut else iz new, huh? I think its good that we got 2 have women mentorz who r scientists so that we know that all tha scientist and all the good scientists in tha world aint men... like fifi coquette my mentor and of course Ms. Crowe tha greatest science teacher EVER!!!!!!!!!!!!

I am looking forward to going to the highschool alot. I think I will meet alot of new people and GUYS!!!! GUYS are always good. I don't think I will have that much problems getting around. I think I might be confused at first but after a while I will get the hang of it. I also know alot of people up there so I can always ask then for directions if i ever see them. Or maybe I will meet someone who is in alot of my classes so we can travel around the school together and not alone. I doubt that will happen though.

Ruff Ryder: Thursday, May. 20, 1999

I guess that ill get around o.k. in h.s. like 2pac said "I get Around". all that teachers or most of them make it sound mad skary but my frendz say that its not 2 bad. im still kinda if-fy about it cuz its like 50 million tizez bigger than this skool and it will be a HUGE change so.... however i am still very excited about it and I kant wait!!!! I really lyke my klasses and i got tha 2 electivez that I wanted and Im in all honorz except 4 Math cuz I have 2 be in Algebra 1 again... grrr. But I guess ill do even better since ill already know most of the stuff and Algebra 2 would be really hard.

Im in honorz biology at tha high skool which I guess iz good, but it soundz kinda hard. im skared that ill have a million poundz of homework and no free tyme which iz like a nitemare. My frendz say its not hard, but i dont think theyre in honorz biology and i didnt think of asking my mentor which iz kind of stupid since thats what shez there 4. i think ill ask her after im dun with my scrapbook im in algebra 1 again. ugh! i HATE MATH@#%$ all thoze stupid numberz. i mean when am i ever gonna uze most of that stuff, like dividing letters when do we ever divide LETTERZ in life????????!!!! HUH????????!!!!#$@%&!#$

fifi coquette iz my adult mentor. she taught me that astronomers have sensez of humor too. and they dont always uze REALLY BIG WORDZ. thats cool. i liked learnin about her kareer and i think its kool that her huzband and her r in tha same field of science. my planz 4 a career dont involve science or math, at least not in a big way i dont think. i like 2 write and i luv hip-hop/rap so i think i wanna be a writer 4 a hip-hop magazine and/or a teacher of really little kidz cuz that would be pretty fun and easier than people my age

We haven't tested our bridge yet...but I have HIGH hopes and think it will hold at least 5 pounds...the gumdrops were pretty sticky and the linguini broke very easily, but overall i think we constructed a really good bridge that is nice and sturdy. It may not be too attractive and neat, but what is important is that we gave ourselves a challenge, planned out how we would go about doing it, and used team work to complete it...i don't think anything matters as much as that...(RED are MY personal favorite!!!)

this message is my thoughts on what this whole program is about...team work and learning to prepare us for the future.

As a role model I'd pick my mother. She works hard and takes great care of me. She helps me with homework and anything else I may want. I hope to be like her when I get older. She is the best.

If you really wanna take Art Major, then I say go for it! I really don't know about taking drama tho. I have the teacher for my AP English 3, and to tell you the truth, she's not all that bad....it's just on some days. But everyone has those days, right?

If you really, really, really enjoy drawing and doing "artsy stuff" (couldn't find the right phrase ^^^) go ahead and take art major. Remember, you still got three more years ahead of you to take more electives. ^___^

this gives me the helpful opinion from someone else about what i should take...i have decided to take art major 1

Science projects were really fun. I wish that we spent more time on the projects than the computer. I won't forget the making of our sticky bridge.

I haven't heard from you guy's on how the bridge turned out. But I have been told that some pictures were taken. Here are some scientific questions that should be asked during and after making a design.

Did it go as planned: what was surprising? Was it possible to make changes to the paper design while building? Are the changes recorded on paper and attached to the original design? If you were going to make it again what would you change. It takes discipline to do this type of work after a design has been built. But from my experience if I don't do the summary work I get bit in the butt later. My customer may ask for an additional one, or one with a few changes. In the real world (not school) things happen slower so a year later I can be asked to make it again. Unless I do the summary work I can't. Memory is not good enough because usually projects are with a group of people and sometimes people leave a company or get promoted to other work.

This is a message regarding our bridge

we have started building our bridge out of the gum drops and linguini...it is a very sticky subject..literally!!! we have also run into some difficulties: the linguini is very fragile and breaks very easily...the gumdrops are very sticky and can't fit too many pieces of pasta in them...maybe we should have tried a different technique, but this one was pretty creative...it is a real challenge. we are gonna finish it up next week hopefully...bye 4 now!!!

as my future career i would like to be a few things. I want to be an interior designer and decorator, a gymnastics teacher, or a financial analyst(that's what my mom does and you learn really helpful stuff) I am probably going to take all sorts of courses in high school and college to see if there are any other things i may want to do. then i can change careers as an adult if i am not satisfied.

Written by finest 01, July, Roxygrrl

I think Eyes to the future is boring when no one else from your team is around. With out your team member there isn't a whole lot to talk about. When team members are here Eyes to the Future is more fun but we still spend too much time on the computer. I don't think I'll do it next year. Eyes to the future needs to go out side or go on a field trip. That is what the girls group my sister is in do. Last Thursday they went bowling. I liked having mentors to talk to, but when they aren't on at the same time as you it's hard. I have a computer at home so when I come here and we have a half an hour to check messages it's boring. Typing messages is o.k but even that gets boring after a while. In the end Eyes to the Future was okay. I'd give it about a 5 on a scale of 1-10.

The "Eyes To The Future" program was alot more fun this year than last. This year it was more Hands-On and we didn't just write stuff back and forth to our mentors. Instead, we designed a project to help us learn about our adult mentor's career, and i got alot more helpful information about the High School from the high school mentor. I also got to know people in my school a little better that I had never really talked to before. that was a nice experience. Overall, I am really glad that I did this program again this year.
